Miss Sublett and Mr. Vaden Married at Meade Memorial Church.

PERSONAL NOTES ABOUT CITIZENS.

The Alert Fire Company Received a Check-A Convicted Boy With a Bible and a Fack of Cards Brief Items of Interest.

Not for a long time has there happened a social event of so general and widespread interest as the marriage at the Meade-Memorial church last evening at 6 o'clock of Mr. Bernard Page Vaden to Miss Lucy Nelson Sublett. daughter of the late James M. Sublett, Esq. The celebration of the beautiful Episcopal service was performed by Rev. J. J. Clopton, rector of the church, in the presence of the largest audience that ever filled that edifice.

Above and around the chancel there hung a profusion of flowers and evergreens. In the extreme rear a pyramid of hot-house plants emitted a delightful odor, and on either side were evergreens and ferns. Just over the centre hung a pretty wreath, in the middle of which were the letters "S. V.," the whole beautifully wrought of rare roses and chest man) and Robert E. Vaden; then the bride and groom.

The ever-familiar sounds of the wedding march announced that the wedding party had arrived, and all eyes were centered upon the graceful bridal cortege as it entered and wended its way up the right-hand sisle. First came the ushers in the following order: William B. Ball and Thomas Smith, Tom E. Owen and Walker Hatcher, Claiborne Wat-kins and Walter Grinnan, Ernest Weisiger (best man) and Robert E. Vaden; then the bride and groom.

In clear and distinct tones were the responses made, and after the ceremony the bridal party left the church by the left hand aisle. On the outside the newly-wedded pair received the congratulations of a number of friends. They were then driven to the depot, where they took the 7 P. M. train for an extended Northern tour.

The bride is one of Manchester's fairest and most popular society belles, and by her charming manners and lovable character has endeared herself to a large circle of admiring friends. Her pretty petite form was clad in a bridal gown of white satin, trimmed in point lace and hand-work of finest silk. She carried a beautiful bouquet of white roses.

Mr. Vaden is a very popular young man both in social and business circles, and has a host of friends who wish him and his fair young wife much happiness in their new life. He is a member of the well-known hardware firm of Vaden & Co.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs.

of Vaden & Co.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs.
William W. Michaux of Powhatan and Mr. and Mrs. B. Martin of Hallsboro. Both of these ladies are sisters of the bride. Her other sisters are Mrs. Judge Ingram and Mrs.
John W. Arrington. Mr. William H. Hill, cashier of the State Bank, who was a great friend of the bride's father, was also in sttendance.

A number of young lady friends of the bride graced the occasion in evening costume and presented a beautiful appearance in their decolete dress. Among them were Miss Carrie Vaden. Miss Lavinia Vaden, Miss Agnes Walker, Miss Mamie Lee Drewry, Miss Katie Drewry, Miss Bessie Gill, Miss Hettie Goolsby, Miss Annie Fendley, Miss Annie Parker and others.

The presents were numerous and beautiful.

Miss Cook presided at the organ in a very pleasing manner.

Appreciating their efforts Mr. Shotwell yesterday sent their efforts Mr. Shotwell yesterday sent the following communication which explains itself: "Mr. A. J. Gallegher, chief, and members of the Alert Fire Company: Gentlemen—Appreciating your very valuable services at the fire at our tannery on the night of the 6th instant, and being aware of the fact that you are an unpaid fire company, we feel a desire to offer you some reward for your most efficient work and herewith enclose you our check for fifty dollars, which we offer you as a donation, and beg your acceptance of the same. Trusting that the honorable City Council may see fit to equip you with a better outfit for your most important duties, and tendering your entire company our sincere thanks, your entire company our sincere thanks, we remain very truly yours. "A. D. Shotwell & Co."

The City Council meets Friday night, when the petition of the fire company will come up for consideration. Should nothing be done for them they will immediately disband, and the city will find itself without any protection whatever in case of fire. It is earnestly to be hoped that something may be done to keep them together. BEIEFS.

FIFTH MARYLAND REGIMENT.

The Shining Soldiers Take the City and Exposition by Storm.

GREETED WITH CHEER UPON CHEER

As They Parade the Streets-It is Also Odd-Fellows' Day, and Exercises are Held to That Effect.

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 11 .- [Special.]-To-day will go down on record as the red letter day of the Exposition. The Fifth Maryland regiment to-day took the city and Exposition by storm and their visit here will long be a memorable event in the history of Raleigh. A general air of festivities pervades the city to-night, and the visit of the Fifth Maryland here ended tonight with one of the most brilliant balls in the history of the State. Distinguished men and beautiful women from all over the State were in balcony was crowded. The ladies predominated, and many awaited the procession on the street in carriages.

To-day was also Odd-Fellows' Day, and there were over three hundred members of that order here from Charlotte, Winston, Durham, Oxford, Fayetteville, Greenville, Goldstoro, New Berne, Scotland Neck and other places.

This morning at 10 o clock the Fifth Marylian's regiment paraded the city. By 10 o clock every foot of space on the sidewalks and every balcony was crowded. The ladies predominated, and many awaited the procession on the street in carriages.

Shortly after 11 o clock the regiment began to move up Fayetteville street. They were headed by the Governor's Guard and drum corps. After which came the Fifth Maryland band and drum corps in brilliant uniforms. The regiment followed. As they marched up the street, their six hundred gleaning bayonets fairly blazing in the early morning sunlight, and their measured, swinging step keeping time to the tap of the drums. The sight was one never to be forgotten. Cheer after cheer greeted them as they marched along. When they passed the Capital Club a large number of its members stood upon the balcony and gave a rousing applause to the soldiers. The regiment was marched to Feare Institute, where a halt was made. The young ladies of this well-known seminary were drawn up in line in charge of Professor Dinwiddie, on the sidewalk, facing the visiting soldiery and every young lady was beautifully costumed with the Baltimore colors, some of the dresses being quite unique. As soon as the command halted, amidst the waving of a plause, the boys of the Fifth returned the greetings with cheers by companies, some having their peculiar yell.

In the midst of all this Colonel Boykin himself rode up into the regiment and shouted, "Three cheers for the young ladies of Peace Institute! and the cheers went up from six hundred throats with enthusiasm.

The regiment next marched to St Mary's Female School, where a similar reception was given them, and thence they marched to the Exposition grounds. Here felly 1,0,00 people had massed to meet them and they were given a rousing reception. After going through a number of evolutions they stacked tarms and scattered over the grounds. The crowd on the grounds during the day to-day was estimated at between 15,000 and 18,000. The crowd was twice as large as on any former day and the throng

KNOWLES' PATENT

SEWER-CLEANER,

[A Copy.]

READ AND BE CONVINCED

OF ITS PERFECT WORK.

NORFOLK, VA., October 13, 1891. To the Board of Street, Sencer and Drain Com-missioners, Norfolk, Va.:

missioners, Norfotk, Va.:
Gentlemen.—The honorable the select Council at its meeting in March last passed the following resolution—to wit:
"Resolved, That the Board of Street, Sewar and Drain Commissioners examine into the merits of the patent of Mr. Paniel Knowless for the cleaning of sewers and report if the same is desirable to be applied to the sewerage of the city."

This resolution was referred to me, and as means impossible for me to give an opinion until time had elaised to try the device and comparate with previous methods I have been compelled to defer reporting on the same until the present moment. In order to try Mr. knowles patent I selected the lock-street extended line, on which the grades are rather flat, the pipe line a six-inch one, and where we have had more than ordinary trouble from the accumulation of grease, which at this point occasioned frequent stoppage, not only of the sewer itself, but of the house connections also. To clean out this line required the digging of holes in the stress whenever it became atopped in order to get a rope through the pipes for the purpose of cleaning them, and the frequency of the stoppage here rendered this the most troublesceme lateral in the whole of our sewerage and the one causing them, and the frequency of the stoppage here rendered this the most troublesceme lateral in the whole of our sewerage and the one causing the greatest expense in putting it in order. Since Mr. Knowles put in his appliance should year since we have not had occasion to disturb the street once and the opening of the line from stoppage has never required anything but the removal of the man-hole plates and the agricution of the wire rope, permanently in the piper. The saving in expense on this street has been a marked one and I would unhesitating recommend, wherever we have similar troubs, that the appliance be used. I do not mean to say, however, that the general application of the appliance to all our lines is either necessary or advisable, but only in such places where light grades, and the accumulation of grease occasion frequent stoppages, and where man-holes are few and far between, as is the case in the first section of the sewer constructed.

The point of application of the appliance must be left to your judgment and need not be considered until the necessity is demonstrated in each instance.

Mr. Knowles also has a modification of h This resolution was referred to me, and as must be a considered until the necessity is demonstrated in each instance.

Mr. Knowles also has a modification of his appliance for house connections, which in my opinion, is a good thing and which will enable any householder having it to free his connections from stoppages easily and inexpensively. I have no doubt but that this will be gradually adopted by our citizens where stomages in their lines occur. The settlement with Mr. Knowles for the line already fixed and for the future use of his patent must be a matter for your future consideration and has no bearing in the matter that you are called upon to report.

Very respectfully.

[Signed]

W. T. BROOKE.

City Engineer.

To the Citizens of Richmond

You may not be aware that your house connections with the public sewers are lined with putrid grease and other offensive matter that causes a bad stench in your water-closets and around your kitchen sinks. It is so, nevertheless, and the testimonials that I have in my possession, which are too numerous to mention in this advertisement, would convince you that my device is one of the Best Sanitary Measures

ever invented. Doctors that I have shown the putrid grease to were assonished at it. It is so offensive when taken out of the pipes that you can't bear to go near it. This is all eradicated when you have applied to your house. For further information I refer you to the following well-known citizens who are using my patent cleaner. Ask any of them if their yards have been due up or if they have been under any expense or suffered any nuisance a neemy patent cleaner has been applied to their houses. I will likewise make a specialty of cleaning house connections with the public sewer under my own supervision. Mrs. Stanforth, Wood Street.

THE KNOWLES PATENT
